

Compassion-Focused Therapy for Eating Disorders (CFT-E) Group

Introduction

The Compassion-Focused Therapy group for Eating Disorders (CFT-E) is a group which offers a comprehensive psychological therapy for individuals who can manage recovery from their eating disorder in the community.

The group is open to all individuals with an eating disorder diagnosis. The individuals who will benefit from this intervention tend to share many common problems including being worried about their size, shape, and weight. They are also likely to use food, dieting, activity, vomiting or weight loss drugs to manage difficult experiences, relationships, or painful thoughts, feelings and memories.

The group incorporates education for both service users and their family members; skill building and therapeutic elements. It aims to target both the biological factors and the underlying psychological processes which underpin and maintain an eating disorder. The group helps service users to develop the ability to treat themselves in a more compassionate way and fosters social connectedness. The group is particularly suitable for individuals who struggle with shame, guilt or self-criticism.

Who is this group for?

Adults most likely to experience some benefit from attending this group are:

- Individuals experiencing an eating disorder (anorexia nervosa, bulimia nervosa, binge eating disorder, or eating disorder not otherwise specified)
- Individuals who struggle with shame, guilt, or self-criticism
- Individuals who do not require supervision of their eating, who have expressed a desire to recover from their eating disorder and can take responsibility in relation to this
- Individuals who have a BMI of 18kg/m² or above
- Individuals who have access to a service (eg. multi-disciplinary team, GP) that will monitor their physical health (bloods, ECG where applicable) throughout the duration of treatment
- Individuals experiencing additional mental health difficulties are welcome.

When and where?

The group takes place on Wednesdays. The group will be facilitated in-person in St Patrick's University Hospital.

Who runs the groups?

Groups are run by a team of three clinical psychologists and an assistant psychologist.

How are referrals made?

Any service user interested in attending the group can discuss it with their team who will refer them to one of the clinical psychologists who facilitates the group to assess whether the group is a good fit for their needs. Referrals can also be made to the group by outside agencies including general practitioners, consultant psychiatrists, psychologists, psychotherapists, nurses and other mental health professionals.

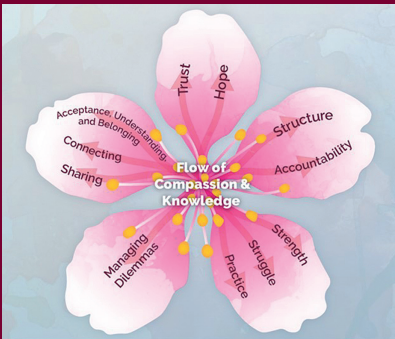

New referrals are welcome at any time but will be waitlisted until the next cycle commences. Intakes occur once or twice per annum.
